Babies and Toddlers

Catching vision issues early is crucial to ensuring healthy eye development. Infants will likely have vision screenings at their pediatrician appointments. If their pediatrician notices anything of concern, they will refer you to an eye doctor for additional care. If everything looks good, children should receive their first full eye exam at three years old.¹

Children

More than one in four school-age children have some form of a vision problem and this can impact their ability to learn.² Schedule your child's yearly eye exam at the beginning of each school year.

Adults

More than 12 million Americans over the age of 40 have some form of vision impairment.³ Even if you have 20/20 vision, annual eye exams are important. VSP network eye doctors can detect signs of more than 270 health conditions during your annual eye exam—including diabetes and high blood pressure, as well as eye conditions such as glaucoma and diabetic eye disease.⁴

Senior

Age-related macular degeneration is the leading cause of vision loss and blindness among Americans aged 65 and older.⁵ Many of these eye diseases start with subtle symptoms. However, yearly eye exams can help prevent vision loss.

Don't Wait

until there's a vision issue to schedule an eye exam!
Yearly eye exams can help you stay healthy at any age.
